JUNIOR CLASS BOYS

Junior Class

The class of 1918 began its formal activities late in December. Shortly before the Christmas vacation the election of class officers and a class pin committee was held. The nominations were conducted on a new basis, that of petition which demanded the election of any pupil or pupils to office. Candidates for class offices had to secure fifty signatures in order to be nominated, candidates for pin committee, thirthy-five. When the petitions had been collected and counted, it was found that only one out of a class of over three hundred had rendered his signature useless by signing more than one petition for the same office. This shows that the plan, which was a suggestion of Mr. Cleveland's, was a decided success, as it produced the same result as the ballot-casting for nominations, and saved a great deal of trouble.

The election was held the day after the petitions had been collected, and the result was as follows:

President—John Collier
Vice-President—Constance Boyer
Secretary—Susan H. Diehl
Treasurer—Bert A. Powers

Pin Committee:

Thomas Herlihy, Chairman
Gladys Campbell
Edwin Sage
Mabel Jean
Lawrence Tracy.

An opening meeting was held soon after the result of the election had been announced, and at this meeting an executive committee, comprising the four class officers and Robert B. Boyd, was appointed by the President.

The first business attempted was the collection of a monthly class tax, and it may be said here that 1918 is the first class to have successfully carried out this method of providing financial support for its senior year book. The plan has been attempted before but proved such and abject failure as to necessitate its abandonment.

On Friday evening, May 18, the class held a Junior Prom in the gymnasium. The affair was a great success and vindicated the confidence placed in us by the master of the school in allowing us to hold a Junior Dance; for 1918 is the first class since '14 to secure permission for running this event.

Taken altogether the class has certainly had a great year and has established a precedent for future junior classes to live up to. 1918 will start in its senior year with a large sum of money to fall back upon, and, we hope, will in its last year, continue the good work already begn; and ably fill the rather large shoes left us by the class of 1917.

Merchants' Meeting Well Attended

A meeting of the Business Men's Association took place at Cogges Hall last evening. The meeting was well attended, all four members being present. Al Brooks, commonly called Babbling Brooks, the president, called the meeting to order and discussed all unimportant business, which lulled the energetic club to sleep. John O'Connell, inventor of the Hot-Air Furnace bearing his name, discussed the advantages of the O'Connell Hot-Air Furnace. Before the adjournment William Flynn gave a brief address on Oriental fruits and nuts.

Financial News

The Market opened with very calm conditions in all lines. But after the Junior Prom, it is said that Clisby went to par for more coin. Nichols took a decided slump and has been running in cercles, especially French. Mildred Baldes, one of the Bears, has been investing heavily against the Bulls led by Riley. After the discussion as to the outcome of the Cassidy Securities it was decided that he would make a Butte Copper, having much weight in the District. The well-known Robert Boyd Stocks rose a few points before closing time, but he failed to make the required 160. Foodstuffs have been steadily rising excepting the Forbes which are at Basement Prices. Ques. Miss Taylor, I have great confidence in your ability to advise in matters of beauty. I have a large mole on the left side of my nose. How can I get rid of it?

MILDRED MOWLL.

Ans. Roll up a copy of King's speech at the Senior Meeting and suspend it over the mole. If the mole does not get disgusted and leave in a day, your case is hopeless.

Ques. Miss Taylor, I have a number of freckles upon my face which I should like to destroy. How can I do it?

GRACE WALL.

Ans. All the most prominent authorities have decided that the most effective way of destroying freckles is to place each upon a block of wood and knock it out with a mallet.

Ques. I find my nose is chafed and seems to have shrunk. Can you tell me what the trouble is?

RALPH ALLEN.

Ans. From investigation I find that you have been putting your nose in places it doesn't belong. Stop this, and the irritation will cease.

Longfellow's Poems On Cambridge and Greater Boston

Longfellow is, of all the poets, the nearest and dearest to us of Cambridge. He was certainly a man of great genius, as the whole world knows, but it is not because of his genius or because of any other endowment of nature that he is so dear to us, but because of his sympathy with us—a sympathy arising from a life in New England, from associations in common with New England people, and more especially from associations in common with people of Cambridge and Greater Boston. The most common scenes of his daily life are scenes with which we are all familiar; his daily walks were walks that we all know; his friends were men whose names are now well known in this part of the country; and, above all, the atmosphere which surrounded him is the atmosphere in which we live. He felt the thrill of patriotism which fires every New England boy who reads in history of that "shot heard 'round the world," and he had the famous New England conscience that prompted him to say no one occasion when an unwelcome and frequent visitor was under discussion, "But who will be kind to him if I am not?" These elements in his character together with the more material links of persons and places have made him doubly dear to us.

"The Landlord's Tale," from "Tales of a Wayside Inn," could not have been equalled in its spirit by any poet who had not lived in this liberty-loving New England of ours, and who had not loved it as Longfellow did. Strangers who are interested in our nineteenth of April and its significance come to Boston to visit the Old North Church. It is very probable, especially if they have come from another part of the country, that they remember the incident from Longfellow rather than from their early study of history. In this vicinity one has only to begin:

"Listen, my children, and you shall hear—" and the average school boy or girl can recite on to the very end; for the landlord's story of Paul Revere's message has been wide spread in recent years. Truly it was "— a word that shall echo forever more!"

And to the immortality of history Longfellow has added the charm and romance of poetry.

But Longfellow's work as a whole is of a different character. Much of it is description of familiar scenes in his life and the outpourings of a poet's heart expressed as only a true poet can express them,—snatches from that "grand sweet song" that was his life, from beginning to end. Among these poems are many written in Cambridge. One of the most beautiful is dedicated "To the River Charles."

"River! that in silence windest
Through the meadows, bright and free,
Till at length thy rest thou findest
In the bosom of the sea!"

In sadness and in illness, the poet says, the still beauty of the river brought him peace, and in his happier hours and added brightness.

"Thou hast taught me, Silent River!
Many a lesson, deep and long;
Thou hast been a generous giver;
I can give thee but a song."

—a song so beautiful, however, that it has found its way into the hearts of many who have never seen the river. The river seems to have found a place in the poet's heart, too, for we find many passages addressed to it:

"River, that stealest with such silent pace
Around the City of the Dead, where lies
A friend who bore thy name, and whom these eyes
Shall see no more in his accustomed place,
Linger and fold him in thy soft embrace
And say good night———"

This is from "Three Friends of Mine," and the reference is to Charles Sumner, one of Longfellow's closest friends who was buried in Mount Auburn Cemetery.

Longfellow's friend, the poet Lowell, lived but a short distance from the Craigie House, Longfellow's home. Lowell's residence, called Elmwood, was much frequented by birds, and to his brother poet Longfellow has written a poem entitled "Herons of Elmwood," which contains this beautiful stanza adressed to the herons:

"Sing of the air, and the wild delight
Of wings that uplift and wings that uphold you,
The joy of freedom, the rapture of flight
Through the drift of the floating mists that enfold you."

It is interesting in studying the life of a poet to find that the most trivial details of his surroundings appear in his poems. There is an example of this in Longfellow's "To a Child." The gaily figured tiles of the nursery chimney in the Craigie House are mentioned as attracting the baby eyes, and the pictures on some of the tiles are described minutely.

"The Children's Hour" gives us a charming glimpse into Longfellow's family life at the Craigie House. We can imagine the poet in his lamplit study laying his work aside as he hears:

"The sound of a door that is opened,
And voices soft and sweet."

Then comes

"A sudden rush from the stairway
A sudden raid from the hall!"

And the children have surrounded their beloved father and are beseiging him with kisses.

One of Longfellow's poems of Cambridge which is especially popular is "The Village Blacksmith." The smithy belonged to one Dexter Pratt, and stood on Brattle Street not far from the poet's home. The smith, the eager children who crowded to watch him, and the beautiful horse chestnut tree that spread its branches over the little smithy inspired the poem.

"Under a spreading chestnut tree
The village smithy stands;

* * * * * *

"His brow is wet with honest sweat,
He earns whate'er he can,
And looks the whole world in the face,
For he owes not any man."

* * * * * *

"Toiling,—rejoicing,—sorrowing,
Onward through life he goes;
Each morning sees some task begin
Each evening sees it close;
Something attempted, something done,
Has earned a night's repose."

This characterization of the blacksmith, at once so homely and so beautiful, is a masterpiece in itself.

The chestnut tree was very dear to Longfellow, and he was much grieved by the cutting down of the tree to widen Brattle Street. The tree came down, but it gave pleasure to its old friend even after its death; for at the suggestion of the city government the children gladly gave small subscriptions which swelled into one large fund, and with the money was made a beautiful armchair from the wood of the dead tree. The chair was presented to Longfellow on his seventy-second birthday, and was given a place of honor before the fire in the poet's study.

Thus we find among his last poems one dedicated "To the Children of Cambridge."

"Am I a king, that I should call my own
This splendid ebon throne?
Or by what reason, or what right divine,
Can I proclaim it mine?

"Only, perhaps, by right divine of song
It may to me belong;
Only because the spreading chestnut tree
Of old was sung by me.

"Well I remember it in all its prime
When in the summer time.
The affluent foliage of its branches made
A cavern of cool shade.

* * * * * *

"And thus, dear children, have ye made for me
This day a Jubilee,
And to my more than threescore years and ten
Brought back my youth again.

* * * * * *

"Only your love and your remembrance could
Give life to this dead wood,
And make these branches, leafless now so long
Blossom again in song."

There are other poems, too, written on Cambridge and the surrounding towns,—among them "The Bridge," "St. John's, Cambridge," and "In the Churchyard at Cambridge." Considered together they make a happy whole, and a worthy addition to the poet's other work. By means of these and other poems this Cambridge and this New England of ours have been carried into the homes of every people; our towns and customs, by a poet's singing have been described in almost every language; for the music of this poet is not so vague or so difficult that it can be understood only by the careful student or the learned scholar; on the contrary, its melody is so simple, its spirit so definite that everyone has felt its charm and loved it.

And so in these poems of his city and its neighborhood we find the very simplest and sweetest of his songs, because the persons, places, and things by which they were inspired were nearest to his heart.

SENIOR DRAMA CAST

G. King V. Thompson C. McVey H. Lovell F. Riley
K. MacLarnie R. Allen D. Hinman E. McGuire F. Lane
R. Barron M. Baldes Miss Hartigan A. O'Brien V. Christiansen

The flattering comments, not only from fond relatives, but also from disinterested friends, and particularly from the Cambridge press, must have been very gratifying to the coach and cast of "Tom Pinch," the Senior Drama of 1917, given in Brattle Hall, Friday evening, January 26, under the direction of Miss Lillian Hartigan.

It is no easy thing for High School students, even with training, to subordinate their own personalities to those of the characters of a play, especially such a play as "Tom Pinch"; therefore we take pardonable pride in the knowledge that our Drama was considered the best production of a Latin School senior class for many years.

Our versatile president, Edward McGuire, gave an admirable presentation of the unctuous Pecksniff. The part of Tom Pinch, hardly less difficult, was extremely well taken by Vincent Thompson.

The leading feminine roles were undertaken by Katherine MacLarnie and Vally Christiansen. Miss MacLarnie vividly portrayed the pretty and sweet Mary Graham, while Miss Christiansen showed clearly the real Dickens character of Ruth Pinch. The parts of Charity and Mercy, Peckniff's daughters, were taken by Dorothy Hinman and Rebecca Barron; that of Jane, the maid, by Alice O'Brien.

The most attractive male part in the play, that of Young Martin Chuzzlewit, was interpreted in a clean cut manner by Francis Riley. The character of Old Martin called for some fine work; it is not easy to turn a boy of seventeen into an old man of seventy, but Hollis Lovell, in taking that part, did an exceptionally fine bit of acting. The part of John Westlock was taken by Frederick Lane, while Camden McVey, as Mark Tapley, kept the audience amused.

The cast, Miss Hartigan, and the drama committee certainly deserve unlimited credit for making our drama such a brilliant success.

The Girls' Association opened its season, Saturday, December 9, with an entertainment in honor of the Freshman. This was in the form of a "Masquerade Party," at which over 500 members in costumes representing characters of all description, came. The entertainment consisted of the "Follies of the G. A. A.," a clever review of the past Freshman parties, and a humorous little two-act play. After dancing and refreshments, the happy event terminated with a grand march led by the President, Miss Elizabeth Dee, and the two teachers, Miss White and Miss McLaughlin.

On Saturday evening, February 3, the popular "Girl Dance" was held in the gymnasium. The members, who came dressed as boys, proved themselves to be very attentive escorts to their partners. The most enjoyable part of the evening was the Favor Dance, with 250 couples blowing horn, whistles, rattles, etc. The whole affair was a great success, everyone claiming to have had the time of their life.

On Saturday evening, April 28, the Seniors and Juniors had their annual "Boy Dance." The executive committee assisted the floor director, Miss Elizabeth Dee, ushering the couples to Miss Carroll, Miss McLaughlin and Miss White, who acted as matrons. Mr. Cleveland completed the success by honoring us with his presence.

As all other High Schools adopted boys' rules for basket ball, we had no Varsity this year. Owing to this, the choice for class teams was more extensive, and enthusiasm doubled in the class games.

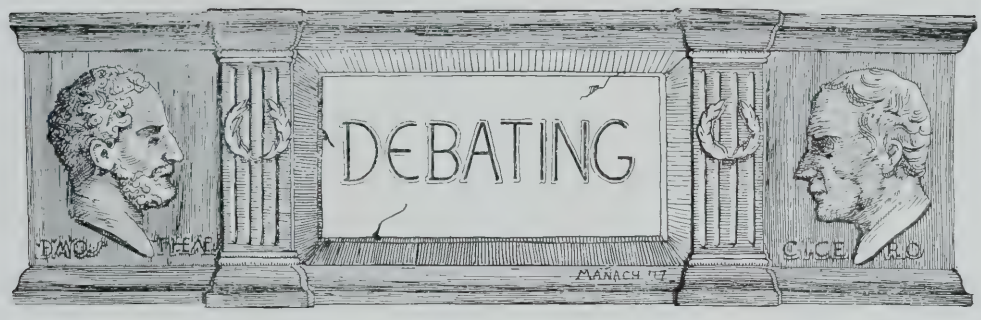
The list has been posted for the entries of the Tennis Tournament, and although it had to be postponed until the end of this season, there is still a keen interest.

The girls are now anxiously looking forward to the indoor and outdoor meets, the most important events of the season.

The G. A. A. has completed its seventh year of successful good fellowship. The influence of the organization, with its 780 members, increases every year and we are very thankful to Miss McLaughlin and Miss White for their great aid in promoting its interests and its aims. Although Miss Brown, the founder of this association, has not been able to take an active part with us this year, to our deep sorrow, she has favored us with her presence at many of the meetings and games. The Girls' Athletic Association endeavors not only to promote the highest form of Physical Education, but to strengthen and support school spirit in its best form.

DEBATING TEAM

H Thurston J. Collier E. O'Brien C. Marvin
J. O'Connell P. C. Campbell T. Mirick T. J. Bunyon



The debating season this year has certainly been one of the most successful in the history of the school. The team defeated two of its three opponents, and the school as a whole showed increased interest in debating.

In the first debate of the year, Harrington Thurston, Charles Marvin, and John Collier upheld, against Arlington, the plan for universal military service. The debate was held in Arlington; nevertheless our "Royal Rooters" were there in force. Their confidence in the team was fully justified, for the judges decided unanimously in our favor.

The next debate, with Lexington, was held in Latin School Hall before an audience of three hundred people. Thomas Bunyon, Edward O'Brien, and Thurston Mirick upheld the town manager plan. The feature of this debate was Mirick's brilliant rebuttal speech, in which he completely overthrew his opponents' case and left no doubt in the minds of the audience as to the decision, which was duly returned in favor of our boys.

The last debate took place at Lowell. Harrington Thurston, John O'Connell, and John Collier opposed the proposition that after the war the United States should enter a league to enforce peace. The debate was very even, with honors doubtful, but the decision was finally rendered in favor of Lowell.

The Prize Debate will be held May 29, on the question of compulsory arbitration of industrial disputes. The affirmative will be upheld by Charles Marvin, Henry Hardy, and Isaac Freedman; the negative will be taken by John O'Connell, Vincent Thompson, and S. C. Olken. On the night of this debate, medals will be given to those of the school team who were victorious against other schools.

The success of the team is due in a large measure to the untiring efforts of our two coaches, Mr. Campbell and Miss Hartigan.

Football

The football candidates were called out by Coach Sullivan the last week in September; although the material appeared on paper to be very formidable, it did not come up to expectation, due probably to individual over-confidence and neglect to absorb the teachings given. The spirit of the team was weakened also by the poor support given to them by the school. In spite of these handicaps, the team showed in certain games some brilliancy which was offset by poor work on the part of the officials.

We opened the season with our old rival, Rindge. We went against a team which had eight veterans to our three, and which had the advantage of having already played two games, where we had played none. Credit must be given to the team, therefore, for holding Rindge to a scoreless tie, the best score made against Rindge since 1911. Boston English was held to a scoreless tie, but Boston Latin was victorious by a score of 7-0. At Swampscott the team fought an uphill battle, coming out on the losing end. Lynn English High is credited with a victory over Latin School 15-14, because poor work by the officials allowed the game to be played five minutes overtime, and also when it was almost too dark to see the ball. We were defeated by Brookline, and by Newton 14-0, although the game was evenly played until five minutes before its close. The day before the Wellesley game nine regulars were declared ineligible; thus practically a substitute team held Wellesley to a 7-0 score.

Though it was defeated, the team has ample cause for rejoicing in the showing made against Waltham. The game was expected to be a runaway for them, as we had been defeated the previous year by an over-whelming score, and we had also just lost nine regulars. We played Walthams to a standstill in the first half, but in the second half they scored one touchdown. We protested, as one of our men had seen the lines moved, but the protest was disallowed.

With the nucleus left from this year's team, and under the careful guidance of Mr. Sullivan, next year's team should certainly have a successful season.

HOCKEY

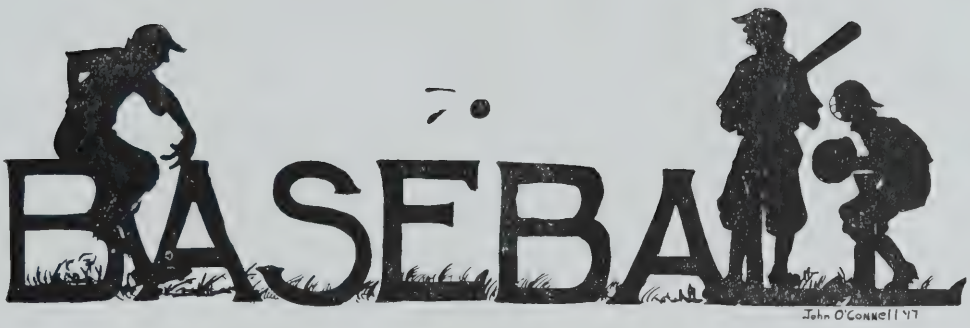
We owe much to the school-board and the city for our successful hockey season, as they provided us with a first class rink at Russell Field. At the opening of the season there were nearly thirty candidates working out daily under the supervision of Coach Edmund Bradley, '13. He devoted a great deal of his valuable time to us with no pecuniary compensation, but purely to help his Alma Mater, and I am sure the school is as grateful to him for it as the team has been. At the close of the season, we were credited with eight victories and debited with eight defeats; we had placed one tie game on the record books. This gave us an average of .500 for the year. The team opened the season by defeating Winchester 1-0. However, the next two games proved failures, being defeats by Medford 2-0, and Brookline 3-0. Both were Interscholastic League games.

By this time our rink at Russell Field had a fine surface of ice on it, and we christened it by defeating Stone School 5-1. Our trip to Pomfret was unsuccessful as we lost 1-0. The best feat of the year was our victory over Melrose. Up to this time our school had never won a game of hockey in the Boston Arena, nor had it ever won from a Melrose team. We all fought exceptionally hard, with the result that we out-played them throughout and won 5-1. Our trip to Exeter was worth while, as we held their heavy team to a 2-2 tie in a ten-minute overtime game. The team won from Middlesex 4-0, Stoneham 1-0, and Boston English High 4-1. Arlington, Newton, and St. Mark's, probably the strongest teams we met, were our superiors. Somerville, the team which we played three times to a tie last season, fell before us 3-2 in an overtime game. With Rindge we lost 3-2.

Ex-Captain Harry Mills, Captain-elect Walter Fitzgerald, "Jay" O'Connor, Clarence Row, and James Bolger were the back bone of the team, and played a hard clean game throughout the season. Letters were awarded to twelve men, of whom four expect to return to school next year. With what improvement we made this year, I heartily wish Captain Fitzgerald and the others the best of success and hope that his men will stand by him as well as mine stood by me this year.

JOHN BLACKMAN.

BASEBALL TEAM



Although at the beginning of the year prospects for a championship team did not look very bright, as several regulars had been lost through graduation or scholastic difficulties, yet the team, under the direction of Coach Sullivan, has far exceeded expectations, and is at this writing leading the Quadrangular League. Too much credit cannot be given to Mr. Sullivan for the manner in which he has developed the team. He has a good knowledge of inside baseball; he teaches his players to think quickly, and to be in the right place at the right time. Though he has had many difficulties to contend with, he has produced the best ball team the school has seen in years.

In the opening game the team sprung a surprise by defeating Newton 6-2. The victory was, however, a costly one, for the team lost the services of John Lahiff, one of the best infielders playing High School baseball, through an injury to his leg.

The Waltham game was won in the tenth inning by the score of 10-8. Wellesley was snowed under to the tune of 17-3, although our team was without Goldspring, who had been forbidden by his physician to play the game.

The only setback so far was received from Boston Latin, chiefly through errors on our part. A second game with Newton took place at Russell Field, resulting in a decisive defeat for Newton 6-1. The second game with Wellesley was played at Russell Field, Wellesley being whitewashed by the score of 16-0. The third game of the series with Wellesley resulted in another victory for Cambridge, 17-1. Brookline High was defeated at Russell Field 9-5.

Henry Vickers and "Jay" O'Connor have been the shining lights of the team. Vickers is one of the best pitchers in Greater Boston; he has pitched three one-hit games so far this season, and has averaged from twelve to fifteen strikeouts per game.

"Jay" O'Connor has acquired a habit of breaking up games; in the games played so far he has made eight extra base hits, three of which were home-runs. He is a wonderful fielder and the fastest man on the squad.

The team is now leading the Quadrangular League, and with its record of successes behind it, should have one of the most successful seasons in the history of the school.

EDWARD F. DONOVAN, Captain.

TRACK TEAM

LaMash Carroll Gourdin Gannon (Capt.) Donahue Tutin

The indoor track season opened this year with only three veterans from last year's squad to build a team on. We were handicapped further by our inability to obtain a coach. However, about thirty candidates reported at the first call and began training. But the issuance of report cards found the candidates on whom we depended to win points ineligible because of scholarship difficulties; thus all chances for a strong indoor team were destroyed.

About forty participated in an in door handicap meet. The competition was keen, medals being awarded to those winning places.

Plans are being made with Rindge for an outdoor meet in which prizes will be given to those winning places. Meets are also being arranged with other schools. We feel sure that with the services of a coach and a little more interest among the boys, Latin School will be represented by a strong outdoor team.

J. JOSEPH GANNON.

Tennis

The tennis team has cancelled all matches with other schools this year, owing to the small amount of interest shown and to the poor material. This year's tournament has not been played off as yet, but the most promising players left are Sanborn, winner in 1915, Worcester, last year's winner, and Hayden. We hope that more candidates will come out for the team next year and that greater interest will be shown.

Among the members of the class of 1919, interest in debating has been especially marked. This unusual interest has resulted in the formation of two debating societies. The 1919 Debating Club (for boys), and the Girls' Debating Club of 1919. The officers of the Boys' Club are Mr. Leonard, honorary chairman, and Myles Danehy, secretary; those of the Girls' Club are Esther Anderson, President, Laura Jones, Secretary, Dorothy Dewie, Treasurer, and Elizabeth Lewis, executive member. Miss Ryan is the faculty director.

The subject of the annual debate, between picked teams of the two clubs, was "Resolved that the President should be elected by direct popular vote." Myles Danehy, James Hunt, and Richard Gerould upheld the affirmative, while on the negative were Elizabeth Lewis, Anna Margeloff, and Esther Anderson. The decision was given by the judges in favor of the affirmative.

Both clubs found great difficulty in securing opponents, but the boys were fortunate enough to be able to arrange two debates with Saugus, one in Cambridge and one in Saugus. These debates will take place on May 18. The girls' team challenged Saugus High, but the latter were unable to meet the engagement. The girls plan to engage in several interscholastic debates next year.

The boys' Prize Speaking Contest will be held on May 29. The work of the year will be closed very pleasantly by a banquet to be held in June.

Judging from the ability shown by them this year, several of the boys should certainly be able to secure places on the school team next year.

CREW

Bliss

Whelpley McDonald Blackman (Capt.) Powers Thompson

CREW

About March 25th Captain John Blackman called out the candidates for the crew. Nearly thirty fellows reported, most of them being fairly heavy and well built. We were lucky in securing some machines for indoor work before the ice left the river, and thereby coached the new candidates in the rudiments of rowing. Contrary to expectation, however, interest fell off considerably by the time we were able to get on the river.

We had a race arranged for the first crew with Choate School, at Wallingford, Conn., but as they had changed from four to eight-oared shells, the race was necessarily cancelled. On May 9, the first crew went to Exeter, and with adverse conditions was beaten by about two lengths. The crew rowed in the following order: Arthur C. Bliss, coxwain; James M. MacDonald, stroke; Capt. John F. Blackman, No. 3; Vincent Thompson, No. 2; Bert Powers, bow. Races with Middlesex first and second crews on Bateman's Pond have been arranged for May 19. The order of the second crew is still undecided. Three of its original members became ineligible on account of scholastic reasons, and a fourth failed to pass the physical examination. The following fellows will be sure to row: Manning, coxwain; Fred Whelply, No. 3; Morey, No. 2; Donald Wright, bow. Because of the circumstances mentioned above, a new man will have to be fitted into stroke position.

The order of the first crew will probably remain the same as it is at present, and it has every reason to expect to give a very good account of itself in the Boston Interscholastic Regatta, which is scheduled for May 23 and 28th.

REVIEW BOARD

R. B. Boyd H. Lovell P. C. Campbell
J. O'Connell C. McVey W. Flynn

CAMBRIDGE REVIEW

The Review has kept up this year the reputation established in former years. From a literary standpoint there was admittedly very little chance for improvement over last year, but this department has shown the ability to put out a magazine second to none. The Art department has shown wonderful results, one of the most prominent being the cover design, which is so striking as to attract much faborable comment.

The business department has shown itself to be exceptionally efficient as witnessed by the number of subscribtions and the value of its advertising. The availation is much longer than ever before; five issues have been printed, with one thousand copies to each issue; moreover the amount of advertising has curpassed that of any former year.

Taken all in all, this year's Review has been a step forward, and the board can but wish, if possible, for a bigger and even better Review for next year.

DRAMATICS

One of the many new activities which enlivened our school year was the series of plays presented by the members of Miss Hartigan's dramatic classes. "The Florist Shop," presented on December 21, was an unqualified success. On May 25th two one-act plays were presented, "America Passes By," and "A Game of Comedy." Dancing followed each presentation. The proceeds of these plays were presented to the school for the benefit of athletics.

Another event in aid of atheletics was the Cake and Candy sale, held in the gymnasium on May 14. This also is something entirely unique in the history of the school, and it turned out to be even a greater success than was expected.

The record of the French Club during the past year is one of unprecedented success in regard to the extent of its activities and the realization of the ends for which it stands.

The fundamental aim of the Cercle is to give the students of French in the school an opportunity to practice their class-room acquirements, to stimulate them, and to foster an interest in their own work. The Cercle is not, however, an official extension of the class room, but its complement. The individual ability of the student to converse and to understand the language is either created or developed in an indirect way which is most likely to interest him.

The fact that few have failed to appreciate the opportunity afforded by the club has determined the success of the Cercle during the past year. Much credit is due to the enthusiasm and initiative of Mrs. Burton, who has taken an active part in the propagation of the Cercle since its establishment in 1910.

Among the privileges enjoyed by the Cercle this year are those of making the acquaintance of Monsieur de Favre, a French cavalry officer visiting the United States on furlough, who narrated his experiences at the front; and Monsieur Fougas, who delivered a very interesting talk on the language, customs, and public instruction of Canada.

Motto: Use all the gas you've got. Let the meter take care of itself.

A. Allen is a kicker
He kicks worse than a mule.
If he had his way
He'd run our little school.

B. Boyd's a well-known songster
Whose music doth inspire.
Raised he his marks like his voice
You can bet that they would be higher.

C. Cassidy, you know him
Very short and fat
He failed to get the captaincy
It nearly knocked him flat.

D. Dee, our well-liked Bettie
An all-round athletic girl
She's right there in athletics,
And swings the social whirl.

E. Everywhere we've looked
We've found no names with "e's"
So we must in discomfort say
That we are ill at "E's".

F. Flynn's a regular business man
He's always on a rush
We expect to see him a magnate
With oodles and oodles of cush.

G. Gannon was the manager
Of our nearly-was track team.
Since it's no more heard from
'Tis "off the track" 'twould seem.

H. Hayes is 3rd asst. pitcher
Of our famous baseball nine.
We'll sell him to the minors
For a shoe-string and a dime.

I. I am the nut who sadly grinds
All this foolish stuff
Short on sense we will submit
But my, how long on guff.

J. Jenkins, famous athlete,
At foot-ball is surely a crack
But when it comes to lessons
He's there with the big word
"slack".

K. King we surely do not know
But his way we know he'll forge
For reversed we find his name
If nothing less than King George.

L. Lovell's so explosive.
He's worse than dynamite
He sleeps in a filled bath-tub—
He might blow up at night.

M. McGuire is a politician
A machine boss, he, of note
He's shaking hands the whole day long
For every shake's a vote.

N. Cornelia Nelson also will
Greet you in a manner sweet
Then she'll stick you for a ticket
In a way that's very neat.

O. Jay O'Connor is a veteran
In this place of education
His ambition was to be a voter
Before he made his graduation.

P. Polak was ambitous
As catcher to be seen
But all we've seen him catching
Is the "Dickens" from coach Gene.

Q. Agnes Queeny we don't know
Though her we may have seen
But if she's at all like her name
She must be quite a "queen".

R. Riley is the perfect dude
He dresses very neat
When he ambles down the Hall
The girls say, "Ain't he sweet".

S. Dot Smith to McVey's eyes
Is the only perfect being
He gazes rapt at her
And knows only what he's seeing.

T. Towne upon his manly breast
Wears a constant red neck-tie
To scare away the straying "bull"
That might by chance come floating by

U. Under good conditions
The space we'd easily fill
But we'd rather put this in
Than have it filled with nil.

V. Vickers is our pitcher
Who holds our viet'ried mound
All the Boston papers
With his praises sound.

W. Woodsey it an athlete
Of unobstrusive mien
But since some recent trouble
With Vickers he's not seen.

X. X is an unknown quantity
By algebraic rule
And to write about an unknown
We'd be an awful fool.

Y. Gladys Young's an expert
Upon the ivory keys
She'll play from "Travatore"
To "Mary, pass the cheese.

Z. Z's a very scarce letter
With which to begin a name
So we take this opportunity
To immortalize Fred Lane.
